25TH ANNIVERSARY FOR KAIROS

K25 will be the 25th Anniversary of the Kairos retreat program. Campus Minister Ken McDonald and Mrs. Anne Bickett observed a Walsh Jesuit Kairos retreat and brought it to STVM in 2007.

Kairos is a retreat for seniors grounded in Christian theology. It is an experience of Christian community, where a series of talks are given by peers and adults. The mission of the Kairos Retreat experience is to create an environment away from the pressures and problems of modern day life, a moment in "God's time," in which participants are exposed in a unique way to the ever-present love of God and try and see "God in all things." To honor the very special 25th Anniversary of Kairos, the Leprechaun Gold reached out to some Kairos Alumni to share how Kairos has af-

"I was invited to attend K2 but couldn't go because I got strep throat (literally, only time I got sick ever). I was able to attend K3 with my classmates, and I was a leader for K4 as well as K 4.5 (to train the seniors for class of 2009). K3 was awesome in how everyone in our class bonded. I remember being pleasantly surprised by notes left on my door and by getting to hang out and feel comfortable around those I never really saw myself hanging out with. We grew closer and I loved being able to share that experience with my classmates. It really felt like no one was left out; no one was left alone. We were all simply there for each other. The leadership experience was unique and awesome as well because I got to see the rest of my class bond on K4 as I had experienced on K3. Being so involved with my fellow leaders and the faculty was also a great experience. I'll always remember "Live the 4th" and the positive memories I experienced on Kairos."

Shannon Phillips Reed VM 08

"It has been a long time since K11, but I shall never forget the experience I shared with my peers on that retreat or on the two retreats I led the following year. A few semesters ago, as a classics major, I came across the ancient Greek word kairos. I learned this word can have multiple meanings. The ancient Greeks used this word to mean the "critical time to do something" or a "critical opportunity." As we learn at the retreat, the time spent at Loyola belongs to God, yet I feel we can claim it for ourselves as well. We share it not only with God, but with each other and in doing so, take this moment to step back and appreciate each other, ourselves, and the blessing God has given us."

Vince Michalec VM 11

"I was a leader my senior year and absolutely loved it. It was most definitely a life changing experience for me. It gave me the ability to understand others, have patience, have compassion, and become closer to God.

KAIROS 1

I decided to get a tattoo with one of my friends that says "live the life you love" within an infinity sign. I had "4th" placed above the so it could read "live the 4th." Deny, cry, love, live. I hope STVM continues this amazing retreat."

-Megan Tomei VM 12

I can't believe that the 25th Kairos is already here! I made K7 my junior year and was a student leader for K8, K9, and K10. Kairos was the best experience of my high school years. To hear my classmates, student leaders, participants, and teachers, tell their story of faith is something that most high school students do not get to experience. It was an incredibly humbling experience to have someone share that part of themselves.

That's the type of students and staff we have here at STVM- people who will give selflessly of themselves, so others can be helped or progress forward in their faith journey. Every year around "Kairos time," I always get a text or email from a fellow classmate encouraging me to "Live the Fourth." A simple reminder like that always reminds me that I was lucky to attend a high school where a program such as Kairos exists.

Nikki Kanakkanatt VM 10

KAIROS 24

and I were going through some very tough times. I felt confused, lost, and upset as a result. Thankfully, God's timing is perfect. I went on Kairos 21 at a time when I desperately needed to open up about these issues. Not only did I have the opportunity to confide in my classmates about my struggles, but I was also able to comfort them on their own. It is BEYOND amazing. I still feel the great sense of love for my senior class that I gained from Kairos to this very day. I will never forget this experience."

Seniors experience Capstone Project

Shea O'Brien
CO-EDITOR-IN-CHIEF

The Senior Capstone Experience, initiated by Mrs. Beth Dolan, is designed to give all seniors the opportunity to reach out to those fields of interest that they may want to pursue someday. It teaches students how to be leaders and to serve in the fields that they are interested in while making connections along the way.

Seniors will be doing their Capstone Project during the last two weeks of school from May 11-22. All seniors are required to have a STVM faculty advisor. The seniors participating in the Capstone Experience will have to check in with their advisors at the end of each week and tell them what they did the past week and the progress they have been making within that week. They are required to shadow their field of profession for five days a week for at least five hours a day-50 hours total. The project is designed for students to build relationships with community and alumni members, to create a meaningful experience to finish their high school career on a positive note, and to learn responsibility, independence, and self-discipline. Students will then develop a strong work ethic, problem solving skills, and managing and planning skills.

Senior Andrea Dewell will be going to the Seidman Cancer Center, and she will shadow nurse Julia Peterson. Andrea states, "I look forward to the experience because my cousin was a patient there and has since passed on."

Senior Steven Marcum will be learning ways and tips on how to run his own business. He will be going to The Polish Shop and working with James Garner. "I am really looking forward to this experience because I would like to run my own business someday and this will help prepare me."

Senior Nathan Kirk will be doing his Capstone Experience with Lewis and Landscaping. "I am a little apprehensive to experience what it is like to be a landscaper just because I don't really know what to expect."

Seniors at other schools are also participating in the Senior Capstone Experience. Walsh Jesuit High School seniors are executing their Senior Experience Project starting on May 11 through May 29. Each Walsh senior is required to have a faculty evaluation starting June 1 through June 4. This is a graduation requirement.

Senior students at Kenston High School are also getting the chance to get a real-life experience in a profession that they may be interested in for their future. They are required to do a total of 50 hours over a two-week period. All seniors must report back to both their selected faculty advisor and community sponsor. They must keep a journal with them while they are shadowing so they can report back to their faculty advisors to tell what they learned, and if they met the required amount of hours for the project. They will also have to complete an exit interview. The last day of school for seniors at Kenston is May 1, and their Capstone Project begins on May 4 and continues through May 18.

The STVM Model U.N. Team competed in the Cleveland Council on World Affairs Conference on March 4. The team won 2nd Place in competition.

In Model U.N., members debate, negotiate, represent a country, and solve world issues in a competitive environment. The team competes in local competitions as well as across the East Coast. STVM's team meets almost year round. In the past the team has been one of only twenty-four teams recognized as a Top All American Model U.N. school.

The team is considered a small delegation because it has less than 20 members. Members competing at this conference were seniors Matthew Chu, Chris Consilio, Jack Kelliher, Aaron Kofsky, Jack Mileski, Kevin Oyakawa, Rachael Steer, Alex Weber, and Maci Woyat; juniors Robert Mather, Bridget Neugebauer, Dominic Sciarretti, Thales Zhang; and sophomores

Wayne Yang and Jacob Nelson.

A typical competition starts with an opening speech by each team. Then it turns into a debate when different delegates write resolution papers which are voted on later. The team prepared for this conference by researching the topics and country they were assigned, such as the Syrian conflict, child soldiers, drug trafficking, cyber terrorism, and reducing economic inequality.

Many delegates from STVM won personal awards for their performances. Consilio, Nelson, Neugebauer, and Steer won Honorable Mention and Woyat, Kelliher, Weber, and Mather won the Superior Delegate Award.

Many of its members won individual awards. Junior Bryan Borodkin, an attorney for the plaintiff side, and senior Jane Bozsik, an attorney for the defense, both won Best Attorney in their trials. Ariana Davis, a witness for the the plaintiff, won the Best Witness award.

Also competing for the team were sophomore Nando Zegarra and senior AnnMarie Costigan who played witnesses for the defense, and senior Maci Woyat, who played a witness for the plaintiff. Junior Ellie Ewing was an attorney for the plaintiff and senior Jack Kelliher was an attorney for the defense.

The TARC Team

The Team America Rocketry Challenge is where students design and build rockets that must carry an egg to an altitude of exactly 800 feet and have a travel time of exactly 47 seconds, while not breaking the egg. Scores are computed by determining the difference in actual altitude and time of the rockets. STVM has 5 teams competing in this event of 750 teams from across America.

Scores for the challenge were submitted back in December and national finalists will be announced on April 3. Teams invited to the national finals will travel to Washington DC on May 8 to compete. The winning team gets an all-expenses paid trip to the Paris Air Show at the world finals.

The Robotics Team

The STVM Robotics Team ended in January with the state qualifying competition between 24 teams. The team made it to the second round which took place at CCC. They began planning and practicing for this year's competition in the spring of 2014. The competition officially began when the rules for this year's competition were announced in the first week of Spetember. The entire fall was spent designing, programming, and prototyping robots.

The NASA Team

The NASA Team met every Sunday and during homeroom every day. This year's team had to design and build a rocker that would go one mile in altitude and carry a payload. The payload is a pitot tube that will measure the rocket's real time air speed so that it can be compared to the computer's simulation's prediction. The rocket is built from 3-D manufactured parts and carbon fiber composites. The NASA team has qualified for competition in Huntsville, Alabama, for a week in April. This competition will be made up of mostly universities, but seven high schools were also invited. The NASA team consists of freshman Joey Oliveti; sophomores Nate Pohlman and Raykwon Woodruff; juniors Steven Stamer, Paul Grutzmacher, Michael Takacs, Bridget Neugebauer, Gina Neugerbauer, Hamza Taha, and Anna DeKemper; and senior Ryan Schweter.
